

Translation

English is today the language of global business. To successfully position local achievements internationally, these have to be made accessible to a world-wide audience. The correct translation of IT related texts into another language requires excellent knowledge not only of the source and target languages but also of IT. Exactly that is what Vimia offers.

Internationalisation and Localisation

Vimia translates your technical documents, your programs or your website into English so your message comes across internationally too, and modifies your programs in preparation for additional languages.

Offering

Vimia translates from German or French into English. Vimia's customers are company management, marketing departments, product management, translation departments and also IT departments.

Services offered by Vimia include the translation of documents, programs and websites.
